MOORE RIVER, N. S., Thursday,

April 23.—The bitter ten-day underground battle of men against nature for the lives of Dr. D. E. Robertson and C. Alfred Scadding, timekeeper, ended in victory today when the shattered explorers of the old Moore River gold mine were rescued.

The men were carried to the surface after being entombed by a cave-in since Easter Sunday—an underground imprisonment of 242 hours.

They were placed on stretchers and rushed to an emergency hospital.

Soldiers went to the shaft to bring out the body of Herman R. McGill, who died in the underground prison

last Sunday.

The large crowd at the pithead which has waited anxiously since last Sunday for rescue of the men yelled hysterically when Dr. Robertson, wealthy co-owner of the mine, was carried out of the rescue shaft at 10:44

p. m. (Atlanta time).

He tried to smile and wanted to stand, but the effort was too much for him. He had to lie down on a stretcher.

Mrs. Robertson rushed to him, crying for joy.

Scadding, who apparently was in the worst physical shape of the two, was carried out on a stretcher.

Railroad Switchman Killed in Yards Here

A veteran Georgia railroad switchman was crushed to death at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when he was run over by the tender of a derailed switch engine at the Moore switch crossing of the railroad.

According to railroad officials, the victim, J. O. Morris, 48, of Route 2,

Austell, an employee of the railroad for 25 years, was riding on the foot-boards on the rear of the tender as the engine was backing.

An open switch was struck and the tender derailed, pinning Morris beneath it. The tender had to be jacked in order to remove Morris' body.

Morris is survived by his wife;

three sons, G. W., J. H. and M. L.

Morris; two brothers, W. H. and Nolan Morris, both of Hapeville, and three sisters, Mrs. S. E. Peacock, Mrs.

E. Fenn, both of Atlanta, and Mrs.

R. A. Wooten.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Henry M. Blanchard.

Anxious Wife Watches Rescue at Abandoned Mine

Mrs. D. E. Robertson, of Toronto, whose husband, a surgeon, was one of two men entombed in an abandoned gold mine for 10 days at Moore River, N. S., is shown waiting at the mine for his rescue. She is talking with Premier Angus L. Macdonald, of Nova Scotia (man with light hat facing her) and R. J. Ivey (center). The men were brought to the surface on stretchers last night. #### TOWNSEND GIVEN HOUSE SUMMONS

Agrees To Appear May 5; Organization Said To Be Doctor's Property.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—

Dr. F. E. Townsend, today was ordered to appear before a house investigating committee May 5.

The head of the Townsend plan was served with the commission subpoena at his Washington hotel. His counsel, said he would be on hand ready for questioning and denied reports the doctor was preparing to retire to a sanitarium.

The committee again questioned

Robert E. Clements, co-founder of the movement and heard Dr. Robert R.

Doane, New York economist, reiterate his prediction of economic chaos if the plan should be adopted.

Clements disclosed he had a conference with Senator Huey P. Long, secretary before the Louisiana organization at $150 a week after the senator's death. He resigned, Clements said, when Mrs. Huey P. Long was appointed to the senate.

Clements, who resigned as national secretary April 1, testified Old-Age

Revolving Pensions, Ltd., is the sole property of Dr. Townsend and eight other members of the board of directors.

The witness said no individual

Townsend or Townsend club member has any voice or interest in the disposition of the assets of the organization.

Chairman Bell, democrat, Missouri, and Representative Lucas, democrat,

Illinois, brought out that under the California law under which the organization was incorporated, it can be

Indian Girl, Chum Saved From Wolves

SUBURRY, Ontario, April 22.—

(AP)—Followed by seven timber wolves, a young Indian girl used her red sweater to flag an approaching freight train, saving herself and a smaller companion from the animals.

The two girls were walking from

Naiscott to Byng Inlet, and noticed the wolves following them. The younger girl climbed a tree while her companion hastened to the railroad track to flag an approaching train by waving her sweater.

At the noise of the train, the wolves ran away. Conductor W.

E. Johnston took the children to Byng Inlet on the train.

ASSAULT ON WPA OPENED BY HOLT

Snell Plays Use of Fed- eral Funds To Produce 'Boondoggle' Newsreels.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—

A demand that a resolution for a senate investigation of WPA be taken off a committee shelf so that the "boon-diggers and leeches who are destroying the Roosevelt program" may be revealed and ousted was made in the senate today by Senator Holt, democrat, West Virginia.

At one point, the senator asserted that Harry L. Hopkins, the WPA administrator, was "doing more to destroy President Roosevelt than any other man in this country, be he democrat, or republican."

Simultaneously, Representative

Snell, of New York, the minority leader, asserted in a staid suit declared the WPA had formulated a still-unannounced program "to make 50 newsreels of various boondoggle projects for circulation during the presidential campaign.

"This is a bold and flagrant division of relief funds for campaign purposes," said Snell.

"Nincompoops."

Taking the senate floor once more in his assault on the administration of the works program, Holt asserted that Hopkins and his "group of nin-boschek, conductor for the three operas; Hilda Burke, Metropolitan op-of operatic fame; Rene Norton, so-enthusiastic over their three operatic performances in Atlanta during the Dogwood Festival, the first performance at the Fox theater at 8 o'clock

Friday night, with "Aida" as the attraction.

Miss D'Arville is to sing the title role in "Carmen" Saturday night and, if personality and attractive appearance are an indication, she will be the perfect "Carmen." And the critics praise her voice as perfectly lovely, with a truly something to look forward to in her portrayal of "Carmen." She is young and diminutive and modish and fascinatingly attractive, with big brown eyes, an enchanting smile and an engaging accent. She is very proud of the fact that she is a

Basque, her home being near Biarritz. She is a star of the Opera

Comique in Paris. This is her second season to appear in America, and

Atlanta is the second city in America in which she has sung opera. The other appearances, except in St. Louis, have been in concert.

Miss D'Arville says Carmen is her favorite role. She feels she is temperamentally "Carmen."

This Is Official Straw Hat Day
ON WITH THE STRAW

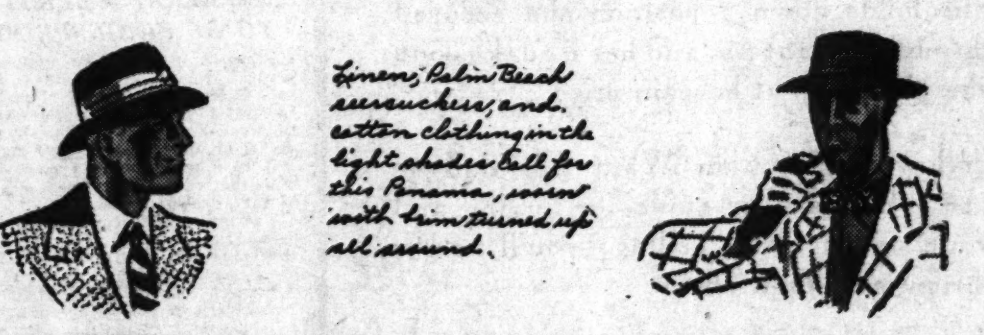

The straw hat is one of the few articles of men's apparel that, as far as current fashion is concerned, is truly American. The climate of England, where so many important fashions originate, is far too treacherous to permit the general wearing of this warm weather hat. It is interesting to note that the various types of braid used in the manufacture of straw hats come from the four corners of the earth. The sennit braid was produced in England as early as the sixteenth century, but the Orient, where it has been produced since the late nineteenth century, is the chief source of supply for the basic materials required in the manufacture of a sennit straw hat. "Sennit" is a nautical term for this type of braiding, and testifies to its early use by seamen. It also justifies our calling this hat a "sailor." This hat is also known as a "boater," as the English used

For wear with white or black dinner jacket, etc., for summer formality, the sennit straw hat is correct. Club or school colored bands are smart on all sennit hats, and this case no well.

The correct straw, a high fashion coming by Nassau Braid straw, is a fuggless band, and is ideal for sport wear.

Linens, Palm Beach sweaters, and cotton clothing in the light shades sell for this Panama, and with him turned up all around.

The lightweight felt is favored by men for country wear during the summer months. For a shoe, any day or afternoon riding, it's a smart and practical hat!

SONS OF LEGION WILL BE INITIATED

Atlanta Squadron Installation Will Be Held at Pro-cathedral Tonight.
An Atlanta squadron of the Sons of the American Legion will receive its charter following formal initiation of members at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Pro-cathedral of St. Philip.
The new organization, designated as Squadron #34, will be composed of sons of members of Fulton County Post No. 154, American Legion. The squadron will include all sons of the post members and will range in age from infants to boys in their teens. All members of the squadron who are old enough to write their names will sign the squadron charter following initiation.
Ben J. Watkins, state American Legion commander, will deliver an address at the initiation ceremony and the Tech High school band will play national airs during the program. The address of welcome will be given by Dean Raimundo de Ories, post chaplain and pastor of St. Philip's cathedral.

Response to the welcoming address will be given by A. G. Conoley, post commander, with Dean de Ories and I. M. Sheffield, sergeant at arms, conducting the initiation exercises. Presentation of the charter and squadron caps to members of the new organization will follow the initiation. The ceremony will close with the oath of allegiance to the flag, retreat played by a bugler and The Star-Spangled Banner, by the band and audience.

D.A.R. DEFENSE HEAD WINS APPLAUSE

Seven Vice Presidents Will Be Elected at Thursday's Session.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, D. A. R. national defense chairman, today was applauded by the Daughters of the American Revolution, but received sharp rebuff from Capitol Hill when she warned of communists in congress "masquerading under the protecting cloak of one of the major parties."
"They may hold this against me," Mrs. Sisson interpolated in her prepared speech before she said: "In no other phase of our national life has the 'boring from within' process become more apparent than in the congress of the United States."
Nine candidates for vice president general, from which seven will be elected on Thursday, were put in nomination.
They were Mrs. William John Ward, of Summit, N. J.; Mrs. Ene-line Amelia Street, New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Eli Dixon, of Roseville, Ill.; Mrs. Allen Harris, of Johnson City, Tenn.; Mrs. Mortimer Platt, resident of Fort Worth, Texas, but who is a candidate from Missouri; Mrs. J. Harris Baughman, of Tallahassee, La.; Mrs. Harry Colfax Grove, District of Columbia; Mrs. Thomas J. Maundlin, Pickens, S. C., and Mrs. Harold Theodore Graves, of Jamestown, N. D.

POLICE TO SHIFT JEWS FROM ARAB ATTACKS

JERUSALEM, April 22.—(AP)—Fearful of new rioting, police decided tonight to transfer 120 Jews living in Hebron to Jerusalem. Eight Arabs were reported killed during the day and 55 others wounded in scattered outbreaks.

An official communique on the Arab general strike in the vicinity reported that in most of the towns the majority of shops, except for cafes, were shut.

LEGION WILL BE ASKED TO AID IN SAFETY DRIVE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 22.—(AP)—Thirty-three American Legion posts in west Tennessee will be asked to join the Memphis post in its traffic safety campaign.
The Legion Safety Commission, under plans outlined today by Dave Harsh, Memphis commander, would be extended throughout the section, with 33 separate community commissions.

UPURNS IN BUSINESS ARE NOTED BY FARLEY

Postal System Highly Praised by Cabinet Member in W. Virginia Address.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 22.—(AP)—Postmaster General Farley said today that business is improving steadily and is certain to continue doing so "at an accelerated pace."
Addressing an annual meeting of West Virginia postmasters, he listed postal receipts and industrial reports as proofs of a recovery trend which he said began more than two years ago.
"While postal receipts are one of the best barometers of business conditions, we have plenty of additional evidence," the postmaster general said. "This additional evidence is found in increased bank deposits, increased car loadings, increased capitalization of industries, increased earnings, higher dividends and better commodity prices."

Mail System Praised.
Farley addressed the air mail system, his handling of which early in the Roosevelt administration led to criticism from republican leaders and some air line officials.
"The domestic air mail system has been entirely reconstructed and is the most efficient air mail service in the world," he said. "The schedules are faster, the equipment the latest and best, and the cost for this vastly improved service is much less than the cost for the previous inferior service."
European Service Seen.
He expressed "expectation" that air mail service to Europe would be established "within the next year or two."

"The department is now engaged in effecting economies and improvements in the postal service and much has been accomplished in improving the rural mail service and effecting a substantial saving in its operation."
Farley said the postal savings deposit in its history—approximately $1,214,000,000—and that since March 1, 1935, the department has sold United States savings bonds with a total face value of more than $400,000,000.

BAPTISTS TO MEET

Northern, Southern Groups To Hold Joint Session.

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—(AP)—For the second time since 1845, northern and southern Baptists will hold a joint meeting here May 18 and 19. But leaders here say the attempt at organic union will be made.
When they met jointly in Washington in 1933 it was the first time the two groups chose the same city at the same time since the denomination split over the slavery issue before the Civil War.
Dr. Oscar Johnson, pastor of the Third Baptist church here and former head of the northern Baptist convention, said the purpose of the joint meeting was "simply fellowship and a better understanding of the historic Baptist principle for today."

ARMSTEAD HOLCOMBE PASSES IN MARYLAND

SALISBURY, Md., April 22.—(AP)—Armstead Richardson Holcombe, former managing editor of the New York Herald-Tribune, died here tonight of pneumonia. He was 59 years old. Holcombe had been owner of the Eastern Shore Times, Berlin, Md., since 1931.
Holcombe entered the Peninsula General hospital six days ago. He died at 6:10 p. m. (Atlanta time).

COURT UPHOLDS WILL
OF MRS. HUNGERFORDHusband Loses Contest on Issue of Legal Residence of Testatrix.

The will of the late Mrs. Julia Murphy Hungerford, member of a prominent Atlanta family, was upheld in Fulton superior court yesterday against an action by her husband, Robert Hungerford.

In a verdict directed by Judge E. P. Fomeroy, Mrs. Hungerford was declared to be a resident of Fulton county at the time of her death, and the will in dispute was declared her legal last testament.

The decision cleared the way for Hughes Spaulding and Dr. Julian Riley, executors, to probate the will in Fulton county. The executors were represented by James A. Branch, Marion Smith, attorney for Hungerford, who contended that Mrs. Hungerford was a resident of New York at the time of her death, will appeal that part of the decision relating to residence, it was said.

Hungerford, left only $5,000 and some jewelry in Mrs. Hungerford's will, sought to prove his wife was a resident of New York, in which state he was said to have received half the estate of $1,200,000.

An administrator has already been appointed by the surrogate's court in New York and Branch is said to be planning to contest action there and in Delaware by contending the verdict in Fulton county makes the will valid and leaves it to Spaulding and Dr. Riley to administer.

Mrs. Julia Murphy and Mrs. Julian Riley, mother and sister, respectively, of Mrs. Hungerford, are joint beneficiaries of the estate.

JURY TO INVESTIGATE
CITY SCHOOLS TODAY

Sutton and Board Members
To Be Quizzed, Charges
To Be Aired.

City school affairs will be taken up by the Fulton grand jury at a special session at 10 o'clock this morning. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent, and all members of the Atlanta Board of Education will be questioned by the grand jurors.

Charges against Sutton made by W. W. Matthews, board member, will probably be aired, it was understood, as the grand jury delves into the reasons for delay in WPA school construction projects.

Matthews has accused Sutton of dominating the education board by giving jobs to relatives and friends of board members in return for their support.

He has also laid at Sutton's door the delay in school construction for which a $1,000,000 bond issue was voted last fall to be used with federal funds.

The grand jury yesterday examined J. W. Simmons, clerk of the superior court; Charles M. Paschal, chief deputy; and Claude C. Mason, of the ordinary's office.

It was understood the session was for the routine investigation of these two offices and that conditions in both were found satisfactory.

How far the current grand jury will go in its investigation of the city school department was not known. This jury has only three more regular sessions and will go out of office May 1.

Sutton will be the first witness this morning and it was understood he will be closely questioned concerning the present state of affairs in the city school department. Records of the Atlanta schools have already been examined by grand jurors.

Foreman R. A. Agnew said yesterday afternoon the routine business of the grand jury was discussed yesterday and that the police situation did not come up. He said it was not expected to be brought up today.

STATIONERS OPEN
CONVENTION TODAY

Delegates From Eight States
Here for Three Days of Sessions.

Stationers and office outfitters from eight southern states will meet in Atlanta today for the annual convention of the Southern Division of the National Stationers' Association. Registration began yesterday afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel and more than 300 visitors are expected to attend the three-day convention.

Convention sessions will begin at 10 o'clock this morning with H. G. Carithers, of Atlanta, governor of the southern division, presiding. The principal addresses of the morning will be made by B. J. Bristol, of Des Moines, Iowa, president of the national association, and Charles P. Garvin, of Washington, D. C., general manager of the national body.

The addresses will be followed by a convention luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel, with the wives of the delegates entertained at a luncheon at the Biltmore hotel.

The afternoon session will bring dealers' problems under detailed discussion, and attendance will be confined to dealers.

Wives of the delegates will enjoy the various features of the Atlanta Dogwood Festival during the afternoon and a buffet dinner-dance tonight will close the initial day of the convention program.

Association members were reported as registering yesterday from the eight southern states comprising the division, which include Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi.

TWO MEN ARE INJURED
WHEN AUTO HITS POLE

Two men were injured when the automobile in which they were riding swerved across the street and crashed into a telephone pole in front of 1133 West Peachtree street early yesterday morning.

Joel Jackson, 24, of Monroe, the driver, suffered a broken nose, and Roland Cheek, 34, also of Monroe, suffered a fractured jaw and severely lacerated head.

Cheek was admitted to Grady hospital in "fair" condition, and Jackson was dismissed following treatment. Police said the driver lost control of the car.

HEATING PLANT COST
PLACED AT $245,524

Chairman E. E. Lindsay of the State Board of Control, yesterday announced that the new central heating plant and its equipment at the state hospital at Milledgeville would cost $245,524. The Grinnell Company of Atlanta was the low bidder on the construction of the plant. The company's proposal was for $115,000. A number of low bids for the equipment totaled $130,524.

Lindsay said that the Public Works Administration will pay 45 per cent of the total cost and the actual awarding of contracts awaits PWA action.

CHIEF PARKER TO GET
FIRE AWARD MONDAY

Department Head To Be Presented Plaque in Washington.

The Atlanta fire department's winning of the grand national award in fire prevention and fire fighting work for 1935 will formally be recognized Monday when Chief O. J. Parker, head of the Atlanta firefighters, is presented with a plaque at the annual convention luncheon of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in Washington.

Chief Parker will be accompanied on the Washington trip by M. H. Carter, Atlanta fire marshal; Harry Phillips, assistant fire marshal; R. C. Endicott, fire investigator, and O. D. Brooks, the chief's driver.

The plaque will be presented at the luncheon by F. W. Koeckert, of New York, president of a large fire insurance company.

Members of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce also will attend the luncheon as visitors to the national convention.

The record set up by the Atlanta fire department last year already has been surpassed this year, according to Phillips, and the department and the city is looking forward to winning first place among all cities of the nation again this year.

The fire loss in Atlanta this year has been about half that suffered during the same period of time last year. Phillips declared, and fire prevention and educational work will be intensified during 1936.

The Atlanta department and the Chamber of Commerce last year not only carried on fire fighting and fire prevention instructions for firemen, building superintendents, nightwatchmen and in the Atlanta schools, but instituted a state fire prevention college which brought wide attention.

RESPONSE GENEROUS TO JEWISH FUND DRIVE

Workers Report Many Giving in Campaign for Non-Local Charities.

Incomplete reports from workers in the Atlanta Jewish welfare fund campaign, last night indicated a generous response to the appeal being made in this city for the support of non-local Jewish charities.

Spurred on by the raising of $15,000 within two hours at the opening dinner Tuesday evening, and the announcement that $25,000 had already been secured in pre-campaign pledges, the 200 workers are making every effort to pass the $50,000 quota, set for the campaign.

A workers' meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 o'clock in the civic room of the Ansley hotel, at which time tabulations on the first two days' activity will be made. Workers were urged to contact as many of their prospects as possible by that time so more progress might be made.

"With so many of our large pledges already in," said Harold Hirsch, general chairman, "the success of the campaign now largely depends on the hundreds of smaller contributions throughout the city. The gratifying response so far clearly shows Atlanta Jews are keenly aware of the precarious position of our unfortunate brothers throughout the world. Yet considerable more money must be raised and Atlanta must, if possible, go over its goal to set an example for other southern cities. I call upon every Jew in Atlanta, who is able to give, to open his heart and purse."

Funds from the Jewish welfare fund campaign will be used to aid persecuted Jews in Germany and eastern Europe, for reconstruction work in Poland and for charitable and educational work in this country. Contributions may be sent direct to the offices of the campaign at 1086 Hurt building.

"With so many of our large pledges already in," said Harold Hirsch, general chairman, "the success of the campaign now largely depends on the hundreds of smaller contributions throughout the city. The gratifying response so far clearly shows Atlanta Jews are keenly aware of the precarious position of our unfortunate brothers throughout the world. Yet considerable more money must be raised and Atlanta must, if possible, go over its goal to set an example for other southern cities. I call upon every Jew in Atlanta, who is able to give, to open his heart and purse."

Funds from the Jewish welfare fund campaign will be used to aid persecuted Jews in Germany and eastern Europe, for reconstruction work in Poland and for charitable and educational work in this country. Contributions may be sent direct to the offices of the campaign at 1086 Hurt building.

Workers Report Many Giving in Campaign for Non-Local Charities.

Incomplete reports from workers in the Atlanta Jewish welfare fund campaign, last night indicated a generous response to the appeal being made in this city for the support of non-local Jewish charities.

Spurred on by the raising of $15,000 within two hours at the opening dinner Tuesday evening, and the announcement that $25,000 had already been secured in pre-campaign pledges, the 200 workers are making every effort to pass the $50,000 quota, set for the campaign.

A workers' meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 o'clock in the civic room of the Ansley hotel, at which time tabulations on the first two days' activity will be made. Workers were urged to contact as many of their prospects as possible by that time so more progress might be made.

DRIVER EXONERATED
FOR AUTO FATALITY

C. Lyman Bell, white, was exonerated of charges of involuntary manslaughter Tuesday in Fulton superior court.

Bell was acquitted by a jury which declared him not guilty of blame for the death of Robert Jones, white, who was killed by an automobile December 13, 1935, on DeFoor avenue. Evidence introduced in Judge James C. Davis' division of superior court tended to show that Bell could not be held responsible for the accident in which Jones was killed.

He was freed of all charges in connection with his indictment for involuntary manslaughter.

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE: Valentine Clark, who is to marry Robert Greaser, a young New England lawyer in a month, goes from New Manchester, New York with her Aunt Malah's housekeeper, Mrs. Warren, on a shopping trip. Val's father, Harris Clark, had been killed in a Russian airplane crash two years earlier. Kate Hollister, daughter of Harris's sister, is editor of a fashion magazine. Val phones Kate, who invites her to a party where she meets Hugh Malcolm, successful young playwright; Best Gellishaw, a New Manchester boy who while doing newspaper work in New York, wrote a best seller; Leslie Crawford, Bret's halfbrother, and Winifred Sperry, who is starting in Hugh's latest success, "End of Tears," and Guy Williams, who inherited millions and has a small part in the play. Although it had been understood Bret was to marry Kate, he and Winifred were already married when his novel became a movie hit. It is evident that there is hard feeling between Bret and Leslie, and that Leslie is very much upset when Winifred and Hugh are together. Leslie and Winifred are free to attend the evening party because the theater was burned down and Kate, who had intended giving a party to celebrate the 75-week run of the play, advances it two weeks. When Kate announces that Leslie and Winifred are going to give a scene from the play, Guy says he will go with them to Pete's place, saying she is to see the play anyhow. Believing Pete's place is the play, Val leaves with him. NOW GO ON WITH THIS STORY.

Val didn't answer. They had come to a table set near an enormous open hearth. She sat gazing at the fire, not moving even when she heard Leeze and Cran come up. Leeze sat at her left, staring at Val's profile, painfully aware of its perfection.

Leeze said, "What's the matter with the girl friend, Guy?"

Val looked around, quickly, apologized. "I'm sorry," she smiled at the younger girl. "The fire had me hypnotized."

"Apparently," Leeze accepted one of Cran's cigarettes, started to light it, but suddenly lowered her hands to the table. "See here, Val, there's no sense beating around the bush. Why did you come here?"

"For the love of Pete," Guy said. "Be your age, Leeze." And Val could see Cran shaking his head, counseling silence. But she decided to ignore his advice.

"Isn't this a public place, Leeze?" she said.

"You know what I mean. Why did you come down here from New York with Guy?"

"For two reasons—because he asked me and because I wanted to come. Are they adequate?"

Leeze bit her lip. A white hot anger burned in her eyes. She said, suddenly, leaning toward Val, "Guy belongs to me and if you're wise you'll quit running after him."

Guy said, "Shut up, Leeze—you're drunk."

Which was not true, of course, as they all knew. Leeze was afraid. The seat of her anger was fear. Fear of losing Guy to a girl whose calm dark eyes looked at her and made her sharply aware of her own limitations. Simple physical attraction Leeze would have known how to combat, but Val's superb poise and superior intelligence frightened her, gave her such a sense of inferiority as she had never known before. Drawing upon her cheap little bag of tricks, Leeze determined to shatter this girl's maddening composure.

Guy and Cran must have divined her purpose, for they were already at their feet when Leeze struck. Only Val, once more gazing at the flickering flame in the great open hearth, was unaware of what was taking place until the small, rigid hand caught her sharply across her left eye and cheek.

Half blinded and so startled that she could not even guess what had happened to her, Val stood up and leaped against the table, a hand pressed to her burning cheek. Then slowly, her vision cleared and she saw Cran and Guy clinging to Leeze. Suddenly the blood in her body rushed to her head and all save Leeze's golden, wind-swept hair and Leeze's crimson face became a part of a blurred, meaningless haze. . . . Even then she might have held herself in check had not Leeze twisted free of the hands that held her and thrown herself, screaming, across the intervening spaces.

It was all very humiliating to remember, but always Val would be able to close her eyes and see the rage-distorted little face rushing toward her and feel her muscles when she had braced herself against the impact of the girl's slim body, and recall—with unutterable contempt for herself—the silken smoothness of golden hair between her fingers as she forced the small head back, back, back. . . .

With all of 200 dancers fighting for a view of the unannounced attraction, there must have been a great deal of excitement before Val's brain cleared and she found herself sitting amidst the kicking, screaming Leeze and felt Cran's strong hands tugging at her arm.

"It's all right, Val. She isn't hurt. You'll only make it worse."

Leeze was lying on her face then, face buried in her arms, sobbing violently. Val, understanding somehow that Cran was right, let him lead her out of the dining room and across the dance floor to the curtained arch of the ladies' parlor.

"At 3 o'clock the orchestra played 'Home Sweet Home,' put its instruments away and departed. Sitting on a fiber settee at one end of the big hall, Val and Cran watched the crowd thin out. Presently four women and an old man came in with long-handled brooms."

Cran had explained that the dancing was stopped at 3 o'clock to provide a fresh clientele for the Kennel Club races and the gaming rooms upstairs. He said now, "We'd better go down and watch the pups cavort. Val, we'll have our lugs lined with dust in a few minutes if we stay here."

The nurse in the ladies' parlor had done what she could for Val's scratches and the bruised eye, but her legs still shook a little when she stood up. "I suppose," she said, "it's useless to ask if there isn't some way to get hold of Guy?"

They had been over all that. Guy had taken Leeze outside while Val had been trying to repair the damage to her person and clothes, and neither had been seen since. Having made an unsuccessful search of building and grounds, Cran had said, "You'll just have to wait and see if he shows up. Val, if he doesn't—well, there's nothing I'd like better than taking you home myself."

Now Cran told her, "If they aren't back by four, we'll hit the highway," and led the way through the three connecting rooms to the ornate stairway leading down to the lane track of the Kennel Club. A race was just about to begin. Cran put $10 on a whippet called Greased Lightning, and lost it. "Never mind," he said, "we'll pick that up on the wheel."

In the big lobby on the second floor they stopped before a grilled window where Cran took out his wallet and removed two bills. Val saw him glance uncertainly at the empty purse, then shove the two bills through the barred window. The hooked-nose man in the stall took the bills and set out three small stacks of chips. Cran pocketed the chips, took Val's arm.

"I've a hunch you'll bring me luck," he told her smiling.

"You're certainly an optimist," Val said, trying to return his smile, "after the sort of luck you've seen me bring tonight."

As they entered a long room, Val heard the soft click of dice rolling on velvet, saw the huddled groups at opposite ends of the room. The roulette table directly before them was shaped like a horse shoe. Bare-armed, bare-backed women in expensive evening gowns and men with pale, tense faces lined the three sides of the table.

Cran wormed his way into the group, made a place for Val. She watched his face as he made his bets, eager, while he counted the chips and set them on the table. She knew that he was betting his total available capital in the wild hope that she would bring him luck. Then, as the wheel turned and her fingers dug into his arm, a buzzer sounded. It was not a harsh sound; rather, Val thought, it

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

Many history books state that the first steam railway locomotive was built by George Stephenson and ran its first test between Stockton and Darlington in 1825. The truth is: The father of the steam locomotive was Richard Trevithick, of Cornwall, England, who, on February 24, 1804 (21 years before Stephenson) ran his tramway engine loaded with ten tons of iron castings for a distance of nine miles, to Merthyr Tydfil. The first steam engine used for carrying passengers in the United States was designed by Col. John Stevens, of Hoboken, N. J., and made its initial cog-wheel run the same year as Stephenson's. THE ART OF PRINTING. IV—Better Printing-Presses. When Gutenberg started to do his great work, almost five centuries ago, he used a press which would seem slow and clumsy to a modern printer. By training his hands, he made a board press down on the paper over the type. Then he had to "unwind" the handle, take the paper out, ink the type again, put in a new sheet, and do the same thing over again.

Printing in 1822.

With this sort of press, Coster, Gutenberg, Caxton and others of their time could make one print in about one minute. The first wooden press, modeled after old-time cheese-presses.

Small changes were made in the press, and in ways of ink, the type, Benjamin Franklin and other printers of his time were able to make 250 prints an hour, by working fast. An English noble, the Earl of Stanhope, is given credit for building the first iron printing-press. It was worked by hand, but levers were used to make the printing more simple.

Several years later, during the time Europe was suffering from the wars of Napoleon, a German printer was going about his native land, talking to owners of print-shops and to publishers. His name was Friedrich Koenig, and he had an idea for a new kind of press. It was to have many rollers, and these rollers were to ink the type as it passed under them. There was to be a big cylinder which would hold the paper, as it turned, and press it against the type. Koenig did not meet with success in Germany, so he went to England. There he built a press along the line of his plan. It was turned by hand, but it did the printing more quickly than had been done before. Then came another idea—Koenig set up a steam engine! (The London Times ordered two such presses, and they were used to print that famous newspaper.)

The power press brought a new day for the printing industry. Richard Treadwell, of Boston, built one in 1822, and it was a type which came to be widely used in printing books. Present-day books, however, are printed on very different presses.

The idea of using a cylinder to turn the paper past the type was a good one, but a still better plan was suggested out by Richard Hoe. Ninety years ago, he decided to lock the type to a cylinder which would turn close to other cylinders carrying the paper. He built a press on which this could be done, and was granted a patent. His first press could turn 2,000 four-page papers per hour.

2 CANADIANS RESCUED AFTER 10 DAYS IN MINE

was brought up at 10:54 p. m. (Atlanta time).

He also was placed on a stretcher. Magill's body will be taken to Halifax, where an inquest will be held. "Thank you, boys," was all Dr. Robertson said as he was placed on the stretcher and carried to the ambulance to be taken to the hospital.

Robertson and Scadding were carried out by the rescue workers from the Stettin mine, who have been digging an active part in the heroic digging.

Robertson's arm was in a sling. Scadding's feet were infected. Both men were weak from hunger and ill from exposure.

Both had heavy beards. Their clothes were torn, wet and filthy. The tunnelers broke through the last barrier to the chamber where Robertson and Scadding were crouching at 10:27 p. m. (Atlanta time). The men were on a ledge.

Stunned Into Silence.
The two men, although they had been able to converse through a barrier of slats and twisted steel with rescuers for several hours, were so overcome at the sight of an opening to freedom that they could say nothing for a minute or two.

After the shock of rescue wore off, they were valuable and were in high spirits, tinged a bit with hysteria. As they came up the shaft, supported by the miners, they waved to those who have worked long hours night and day in the worst possible conditions so they might come out alive.

Robertson asked to be taken to the Emergency hospital immediately. Ambulances carried both him and Scadding to the hospital.

The scene at the pithead when the men were brought up was fantastic. Bonfires and searchlights cast eerie lights on the dramatic scene.

Crowd Hysterical.
The hysterical crowd, which had begun to doubt that the men ever would be brought up alive, went wild with enthusiasm. Cheer after cheer went through the cold night air.

Fuged miners, who had been working in shifts for days to reach the entombed men, hugged each other and danced in glee, their weariness forgotten for the moment.

Newspapermen of whom had scarcely an hour's sleep and little to eat since last Sunday when communication with Robertson and Scadding first was established, forgot their weariness in a rush to get the news to the outside world.

Details of the rescue were broadcast from the minehead.

Someone made a long distance telephone call to Waukesha, Wis., to notify Scadding's 15-year-old daughter, Ethel, that her father was safe. She has been praying during every waking hour for her father's rescue.

At the emergency hospital, doctors and nurses worked at top speed to diagnose the men's physical condition and give them required treatment. Although out of their tomb, neither was safe yet. They face possible complications, pneumonia.

When the men were reached, they were seven feet away from the body of Magill, who was an attorney and part owner of the mine. They had their backs toward the body.

bans. The entente was opposed by Italy, who saw in it an effort to wrest away her friends, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania.

3. Turkey has agreed with Great Britain to help her in the Mediterranean if Italy attacks Britain in consequence of sanctions. Should such an event come about, a rearmed strait would prevent Italy from reaching the Black sea. Turkey's assistance to London, otherwise negative owing to her obsolete fleet, would then become effective.

4. Under sanctions Italy must buy and sell wherever it is economically to do so. And the Black sea is an important market center for her. Economically, therefore, Italy has every reason for objecting to the straits rearmament.

Thousands of college graduates and high school students left their classrooms Wednesday to participate in the third annual demonstration against war, sponsored by the American Students' Union.

No accurate figures as to the number taking part were available. Joseph Lash, national secretary of the union, however, estimated at least 500,000 participated.

For the most part the demonstrations were orderly, with college authorities giving their sanctions in many cases.

One student was injured at Appleton, Wis., when police swung nightsticks to prevent Lawrence College students from parading through the city. He was taken to a hospital with a gash in his head.

Demonstrations at Temple University and the University of Kansas also were marked with disorder.

A mass meeting at Temple was thrown into confusion when a flying wedge of husky young men charged under a barrage of overripe tomatoes and bags of flour, overturned the speakers' stand.

At the University of Kansas a free-for-all fight broke out after a tear gas bomb was set off in the midst of 300 students. The fighting ceased when the dean intervened.

Many prominent persons, including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, participated in the peace activities.

A two-year "emergency peace campaign" was launched in Washington with the release of several thousand homing pigeons from the grounds of the Washington monument. They bore back to their native cities a message from Mrs. Roosevelt.

The largest demonstrations were in New York city, where 10,000 college students and 300 pupils from three large high schools attended mass meetings.

At Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., an organization under the name "Veterans of Future Wars" satirized war by marching into the chapel bearing rifles. About 425 students, half the enrollment, attended the meeting.

Other colleges where demonstrations were held, the number taking part and the undergraduate enrollment included the following:

Cornell, 2,500; University of Cincinnati, 1,000 out of 4,946; Vassar, 1,000; University of Chicago, 1,500 out of 5,700; University of Michigan, 3,000 out of 10,500; Dartmouth, 1,200; Brown, 1,500; Harvard, 500; Yale 200 out of 3,000; Tufts, 800; Syracuse, 800; Buffalo State Teachers, 200 out of 400; Lewis Institute, 400 out of 2,500; Northwestern, 400 out of 4,000; University of Rochester, 250 out of 800; University of Minnesota, 500 out of 12,000; Johns Hopkins University 200 out of 800; Lawrence College 400 out of 700; Temple University, 200; Milwaukee State Teachers, 400 out of 1,200; University of New Mexico, 150 out of 1,200; Wayne University, 800 out of 10,000; Washington University, 300 out of 3,000; DePaul, 500 out of 4,000; DePaul, 500 out of 1,400; Carleton, 10 out of 400; Rockhurst, 400; U. Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, told Temple students that the youth of the nation has a right to demand a referendum the next time they are asked to go and die on the battlefield.

A small cannon boomed at a fraternity house at Syracuse University while 800 Students attended a mass meeting.

At Jersey College for Women, Carrie Chapman Catt, noted peace leader, said "There is not a nation today that does not have the expectation and intention of waging war at some time in the future."

Addressing the demonstrating students in a nation-wide broadcast, Lash said similar demonstrations were being held in the universities of England, France, Belgium, Spain and Porto Rico.

"We realize that the billion-dollar armament budget that the United States maintains in the orient and South America mean war," he declared. "We will not support that war."

Gorgeous 'Festival of the Dance' Offered Tonight at Fox Theater

Tonight 600 trained dancers bring to the Fox theater one of the most magnificent spectacles which has ever graced the stage of that theater since it was erected. When the Dance Crafters present at 8:15 the Festival of the Dance, a dramatized version of the great stage of that theater since it was erected.

The leads in "Hansel and Gretel," that loved story of the lost children and the candy witch, are taken by Verdery Boyd as Hansel and Mary Anne Linane as Gretel, both dancing to colorful music. The fairy tale illusion of supernatural beings is maintained by the performance of the witch, the sandman, and the will-o'-the-wisp, portrayed by Marion Bailey Springer, Ernestine Hirsch and Sun-ya Shurman.

Students from the dramatic department of Agnes Scott College and Girls' High and Fulton High schools make up the cast of 600. This tremendous cast forms a gorgeous, human background of trees in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

500,000 Forsake Classrooms For Demonstrations Against War

Thousands of college graduates and high school students left their classrooms Wednesday to participate in the third annual demonstration against war, sponsored by the American Students' Union.

No accurate figures as to the number taking part were available. Joseph Lash, national secretary of the union, however, estimated at least 500,000 participated.

For the most part the demonstrations were orderly, with college authorities giving their sanctions in many cases.

One student was injured at Appleton, Wis., when police swung nightsticks to prevent Lawrence College students from parading through the city. He was taken to a hospital with a gash in his head.

Demonstrations at Temple University and the University of Kansas also were marked with disorder.

A mass meeting at Temple was thrown into confusion when a flying wedge of husky young men charged under a barrage of overripe tomatoes and bags of flour, overturned the speakers' stand.

At the University of Kansas a free-for-all fight broke out after a tear gas bomb was set off in the midst of 300 students. The fighting ceased when the dean intervened.

Many prominent persons, including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, participated in the peace activities.

A two-year "emergency peace campaign" was launched in Washington with the release of several thousand homing pigeons from the grounds of the Washington monument. They bore back to their native cities a message from Mrs. Roosevelt.

The largest demonstrations were in New York city, where 10,000 college students and 300 pupils from three large high schools attended mass meetings.

At Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., an organization under the name "Veterans of Future Wars" satirized war by marching into the chapel bearing rifles. About 425 students, half the enrollment, attended the meeting.

Other colleges where demonstrations were held, the number taking part and

the undergraduate enrollment included the following:

Cornell, 2,500; University of Cincinnati, 1,000 out of 4,946; Vassar, 1,000; University of Chicago, 1,500 out of 5,700; University of Michigan, 3,000 out of 10,500; Dartmouth, 1,200; Brown, 1,500; Harvard, 500; Yale 200 out of 3,000; Tufts, 800; Syracuse, 800; Buffalo State Teachers, 200 out of 400; Lewis Institute, 400 out of 2,500; Northwestern, 400 out of 4,000; University of Rochester, 250 out of 800; University of Minnesota, 500 out of 12,000; Johns Hopkins University 200 out of 800; Lawrence College 400 out of 700; Temple University, 200; Milwaukee State Teachers, 400 out of 1,200; University of New Mexico, 150 out of 1,200; Wayne University, 800 out of 10,000; Washington University, 300 out of 3,000; DePaul, 500 out of 4,000; DePaul, 500 out of 1,400; Carleton, 10 out of 400; Rockhurst, 400; U. C. L. A., 350 out of 7,240; Mount Holyoke, 300; Rutgers, 700; University of Wisconsin, 1,000 out of 6,000; Carnegie Tech, 425 out of 2,200; University of North Carolina, 1,200 out of 2,900; Rollins College, 140 out of 325.

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, told Temple students that the youth of the nation has a right to demand a referendum the next time they are asked to go and die on the battlefield.

A small cannon boomed at a fraternity house at Syracuse University while 800 Students attended a mass meeting.

At Jersey College for Women, Carrie Chapman Catt, noted peace leader, said "There is not a nation today that does not have the expectation and intention of waging war at some time in the future."

Addressing the demonstrating students in a nation-wide broadcast, Lash said similar demonstrations were being held in the universities of England, France, Belgium, Spain and Porto Rico.

"We realize that the billion-dollar armament budget that the United States maintains in the orient and South America mean war," he declared. "We will not support that war."

the Ciaccia river beyond Debra Birhan, where the stream is crossed by an iron bridge erected by former Emperor Menelik.

For the last few days, the Italians in a column of 1,000 trucks, carrying 20,000 men, have been climbing steadily until now they are near the edge of the high plateau.

As the advance was reported by reliable sources to be continuing, official communications from the fascist high command carried no mention of the offensive.

The daily report from Field Marshal Badoglio described advances on the southern front and added a brief comment on continued submission of native leaders in the north.

Heavy rains were flooding the route of the southern army, the Stefani (Italian) News Agency reported, with hundreds of bodies being carried down by the swollen rivers.

The new financial additions to the war chest brought the total appropriations to 10,000,000,000 lire—approximately $800,000,000.

The fascist premier, despite an estimate by League of Nations experts that Italy's foreign assets fell 108,000,000 gold dollars between October 20, 1935, and March 31, 1936, apparently based his action on the annual report of Vincenzo Azziolini, governor of the Bank of Italy.

Azsiolini declared that on December 31, 1935, the old reserve in the bank was 3,027,200,000 lire with foreign credits of 387,400,000, a total of 3,414,600,000.

Banking sources reported later the reserve were still around 3,000,000,000 lire despite foreign purchases during the first three months of the current year.

Governor Azziolini pointed out the reserves figure he cited did not include the gold received by the government, estimated at 1,500,000,000 lire, during an intensive campaign for funds among Italians at home and abroad.

Nor did it include, he added, the foreign securities gathered in by the government under the forcible conversion law whereby the state purchased with lire the foreign stocks and bonds of Italian citizens. This sum was estimated at between 2 1/2 and 3 billion lire.

BOARD APPOINTMENTS ARE REVOKED BY KEY

mittee which has precipitated many heated debates and which bids fair to wreck the morale of the police department due to the committee bickering. Key's friends pointed out.

It also was pointed out that the known attitude of Key and the feeling of city council might impel the committee to resign of its own accord even if the council did not confirm Key's action.

The mayor declined to amplify his message to city council yesterday, but it was considered likely that he will name some of the present police committee members to the new committee if his hands are untied by city council and the confirmation proceedings are approved.

Key's Message.
Text of his message follows:
"To the General Council,
"City of Atlanta.
"Gentlemen:

"I hereby revoke the appointment of each of the members, now constituting the police committee, one of the standing committees of the general council for the year 1936.

"I respectfully request the general council to confirm this action. Upon the confirmation of this action by general council, I will appoint a new police committee as one of the standing committees of general council for the year 1936, which will take the place of the present police committee.

"I am taking this action this way because there is much doubt about my right to remove a member of a standing committee after an appointment is made for the year.

"I do not think the general council could remove a member of a standing committee, but since the mayor and general council constitute the city government and exercise the power of legislation for the city government, I do not doubt at all that the mayor and general council, acting together, could remove any member of any standing committee."

Committee Comment.
Comment of the various committee members follows:
Bridges: "I'll vote to confirm it. We should do something."

Councilman Alvin L. Richards, vice chairman: "I'm for it 100 per cent. I'll vote for it and ask council to do so."

Alderman William H. Joyner: "The mayor appointed me a member of that committee, and if he wants me off, I'll get off. I'll vote for the revocation confirmation."

Councilman Horace M. Rantin said: "I certainly shall support it."

Couch, who has been a storm center of Atlanta politics since the first of the year, and who is under indictment in two counts, yesterday posted bonds totaling $200 in the misdemeanor case. The trial was transferred to the criminal court of Atlanta.

John S. McClelland, solicitor, said the case will be placed on the calendar as other cases are and that it probably will be called for trial within the next three or four weeks.

Named 3 Months Ago.
Just three months ago, Key switched his police committee, naming three new members in the reorganization of city council. He said they had picked the best committee available from the council which was sent to me."

Couch was arrested several weeks ago on charges of being drunk and disorderly. He paid a $17 fine in recorder's court when arraigned on the complaint. The disorderly charge was never pressed.

At last Thursday night's session of the police committee, Couch and Bridges stalked from the meeting asserting, "Couch is drunk or something is the matter with him."

Couch retailed with an assertion that Bridges was offended because he could not control the department any longer. Council Monday turned down a proposal by Alderman Ed A. Gilliam to increase the size of the police committee to 13 members, and another move to increase it to seven members also failed.

Couch was indicted Tuesday charged with assaulting a police officer when he was arrested and with indecency.

except the emperor, are still here and have made their appearance in the streets in their American limousine to reassure the population.

Ethiopian leaders said they believed the Italian army now concentrating an attempt to crush Ras Nasibu, leader of a southern army, before proceeding further against the capital.

Another trainload of white refugees from Addis Ababa slept tonight in the French hotel at Hawash, one of the malaria danger zones of Ethiopia, as they passed in a flight to the coast. No more 24-hour train trips are scheduled to Djibouti, French Somaliland, until autumn because of the danger of outbreaks of malaria.

The trains now run only in the daylight, taking three days for the trip. There still, however, has been no appreciable decrease in the large foreign population here, but more are expected to leave over the weekend. Only a few American missionaries erected tents on the fortified British legation grounds during the recent panic.

The American minister-resident, Cornelius Van H. Engert, said: "I am playing polo three times a week. My family is living a normal life and I see no reason at present for us to take shelter in the British legation."

"The American legation is fortified only partially against possible riots, but the Ethiopians are quiet and well-disciplined. If some Ethiopian chief with a rebellious army should march on Addis Ababa, which is improbable, my family would go to the British legation for a few days."

Takala Wolde Hawariat, mayor of Addis Ababa, told the Associated Press: "As long as I am alive the foreigners in Addis Ababa should not fear the least trouble. I have the situation well in hand and the panic is diminishing."

BULLETS OF OFFICER
TAKE LIFE OF NEGRO

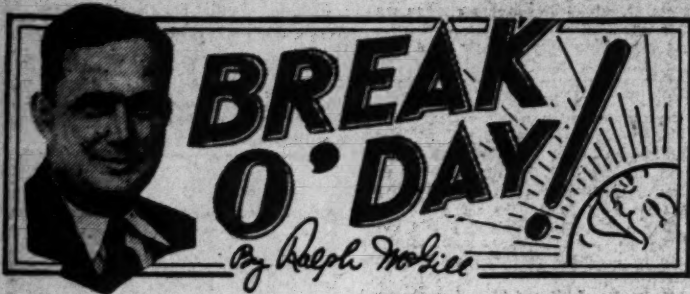

Bullet wounds suffered early Saturday night when he was shot by a department store detective at Broad and Hunter streets caused the death in Grady hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon of James Robinson, 20, negro, of a Chamberlain street address.

According to police, Robinson was wounded in the back by two of three bullets fired by J. B. Carver, employed in a store at 97-99 Whitehall street. Carver told detectives he saw the youth take a hat from a counter.

He followed him from the store and the negro drew an ice pick, and lunged at Carver when he sought to arrest him. Two passers-by were slightly wounded as the negro swung the ice pick wildly and ran. He was shot while running.

'Yates Now Playing Best Golf of His Career', Says Sargent

Four boys—a creaking second-hand car—$29.50—and 1,500 miles to travel.

That's the essence of one of the best stories to be told about Charlie Yates, the Atlanta boy recently appointed to the Walker cup team.

It was the summer of 1935. The intercollegiate tournament was just completed at Washington, D. C. Yates had lost in the semi-finals. He was going west to play in the Western amateur. With him were Harry Gandy, who gave Lawson Little a great match; Morris Hankinson and Walter Emery. Emery was a finalist with Little in the amateur last fall and was named with Yates to the Walker cup team. They were all students from the University of Oklahoma. Yates was from Tech.

They decided to make the trip from Washington to Oklahoma City without asking for help from their parents. It was one of those dares.

The car had no horn. It listed to one side. It pulled to the left when the brakes were applied.

At noon the first day they splurged. The four of them ate 85 cents' worth of cheese, crackers and milk.

At 11 o'clock that night they halted at a tourist camp in a small West Virginia town and argued the man out of four cots for the price of $2.25.

Meanwhile gas—the best cheapest gas any station had—and the best cheapest oil, had been eating into the money supply.

They awoke the next morning with the imprint of bed spring coils in their hides.

And with the cold grip of hunger on their stomachs. They did with lots of cold water and a hamburger each. And started the creaking, boiling old car on its weary way.

FLAT TIRES.

At noon they had their first flat tire. The flats began to appear regularly, exploding every 75 miles almost to the dot.

They cost 50 cents each. Repairs did. They reached St. Louis that night at 8 o'clock. The bank account totaled $8.00.

They were 700 miles from their goal. They figured the gas and oil to be bought and decided to forego sleeping. They would drive all night.

Food rations had been cut to one bowl of soup per boy per day. But they drove cafe owners crazy by eating all the crackers in sight. And drank lots of water. Water makes crackers swell and this takes up the slack in empty stomachs.

They started driving. Toward 2 o'clock in the morning Yates, the driver, halted. His three companions were snoring. Yates halted the car and tried sleeping on the ground near the road.

A lizard or a snake ran over his neck and the bugs began to bite. Both waked him completely. He got in and drove. There were more flats.

DOUGHNUTS FOR BREAKFAST.

At 6 o'clock the gas was about out. Emery was awake. He and Yates had coffee and doughnuts while their two friends slept.

They felt a little guilty but, after all, sleep kills off the pangs of hunger.

Two hours later the others awoke. They began to moan about hunger. Yates and Emery sympathized with some sincerity. After all a doughnut and a cup of coffee isn't very filling, especially when a bowl of soup and two bowls of crackers was all the food of the day before. So they wheeled on. The car listed all the more. And the perfume of cheap gas was pretty bad.

THE ELEVENTH FLAT.

Just out of Joplin, Mo., came another flat. It was the 11th. The bank account had reached the alarming amount of 90 cents.

They bought a hot patch for 15 cents and fixed their own flat. They reached Tulsa.

The gas tank was empty. So were their stomachs. But they filled the tank with 75 cents of the best cheapest gas and started on.

They were pretty desperate for food. They were about to surrender and wire home for money. But outside of Tulsa was the golf club and Gandy knew the pro.

They borrowed $3. That was a help. So they drove back to Tulsa and ate up $2.25 worth of food.

And thus fortified they went on to Oklahoma City where the families welcomed them—sunburned, unshaved and weary. But they had made it.

And the fun of that trip is still the big topic.

OF SUCH SPIRIT IS THE TEAM.

Of such spirit is the Walker cup team. It is, with one or two exceptions, a team of college kids who like to have such madcap experiences.

But when the pressure comes they can bear down and play real golf. The game is still fun to them.

And they will go into the Walker cup matches with all the fervor of a patriot going to war.

It is the most picturesque team ever named. And it should be a winning team.

And if the English members want a little good, clean American fun these boys can give it to them—tourist camps—hot dog stands—hamburgers at midnight—fixing flats—it would be a real experience.

America liked its past Walker cup teams. It's going to love this one.

EAST LAKE PRO RATES CHARLIE IN TOP FLIGHT

Walker Cup Nominee Will Defend Western Amateur Title.

By Ralph McGill.

Charlie Yates, Atlanta's member of the Walker cup team, is hitting the ball better than at any time in his life—says George Sargent, East Lake professional. "Yates is playing his best golf," said Sargent, in discussing the appointment of the Atlanta amateur to the Walker cup team. "He considers him as good an amateur as there is in the United States."

"I think the reason for his improvement," said the popular East Lake pro who has taught Yates his game, "is that he hasn't been playing as much golf as in the past. Charlie used to go off to this tournament and that tournament and wear himself out in a sort of collegiate barnstorming trip. They were kids and had a great time but I doubt if it helped their golf a great deal."

Sargent believes Yates' swing is sounder and that, as a consequence, his entire game is improved. He will advise Yates to forego the open and concentrate on amateur play.

Yates will defend his western amateur title. He must then play in the Walker cup matches and from there move to the national amateur at Garden City.

"I think I simply must defend the western title. It wouldn't be right not to go there. But I am very doubtful about trying to qualify in the open," he said. "I want to continue with my work and that is the most important factor. I could not take time off for too much golf."

Yates said, with regard to his game, he felt he was "hitting the ball pretty fair." But, he added, "it could be a lot better."

Appointment of Yates to the Walker cup team was a popular one, meeting with an enthusiastic response in Atlanta.

WEED CONTROL BILL GOES TO PRESIDENT

Harry Brown Says Half of Georgia Tobacco Growers Have Signed Pact.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The house agreed to send amendments to the tobacco states compact bill today and sent it to the White House. Tobacco-growing states would be authorized to enter into agreements for interstate co-operation to control production.

The senate passed the bill yesterday, amending it to prohibit price-fixing and the establishing of the production monopolies by the states.

The bill gives congressional consent for compacts among the fine-cured, burley and dark fire-cured tobacco-growing states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. A compact for any other type of leaf by any other state would have to be approved by congress after adoption.

Prior congressional consent was given for a compact for these types of tobacco to become effective this year.

Spring Dances at V. M. I. Act As Lodestar for Atlanta Belles

By Sally Forth.

ON FRIDAY and Saturday the Virginia Military Institute will hold its annual spring dances, with a group of charming Atlanta girls gracing the memorable occasions. Located in historic Lexington, Va., V. M. I. has tradition and glamour that few other colleges can boast.

A military school, V. M. I.'s sons can own "no car, no horse, no mustache"—so the dances at this institution are very different from dances held at other schools. Lacking both car and horse, the boys take their dates from place to place in the singular luxury of taxicabs. Except that it isn't singular, because since military discipline frowns upon spending with abandon, the boys use a co-operative system of taxi riding; that is, four boys to one taxi. And four plus four dates makes eight.

Arriving for the Friday evening dance, which is an exciting full dress affair with polished buttons and plumed hats, will be blond Beverly Bailey from Finch school in New York. On Saturday afternoon there will be a truck meet and parade. Stunning brunet Mary Elizabeth Barge, who will go to Lexington from Sweetbrier College, which is located in a neighboring town, will, Sally knows, be the center of an admiring group at these sporting events, and also at the tea-dance and formal dance that evening.

Vivacious, golden-haired Henrietta Collier will be another Atlanta girl to attend the festivities from Sweetbrier. Piquant and charming "Lib" Holcomb will desert Hollins College from Friday until Sunday to take a prominent part in the military gayeties.

Two other Atlanta girls who received coveted invitations to this series of dances cannot go because they have "used up their week-ends." Emma Middlebrooks, who attends Hollins, is allowed only a limited number of week-ends in which she can leave the school. Out of her allotment she has only one left. As she had previously accepted an invitation to attend the spring house parties at Princeton on April 30, she will be obliged to stay very sadly but definitely at school.

Martha Fuller, another Atlanta girl and student at Hollins, was forced to regret her invitation because she is saving her last week-end for the festivities at the University of Virginia. Sally extends her deepest sympathy to these two and warns them to hoard their week-ends more carefully hereafter.

NATHAN and Marie McAfee Brandon are exceptionally proud of their two little fuzzy gray Angora kittens, for it is a miracle that they are still alive, especially after all the tricks that Nathan III has played on them. Young Nathan loves the kittens to death, and that is almost a figurative statement. One cold evening Nathan feared that the kittens were cold, so he tossed the first one he could catch into a brightly burning fire. Miraculously, the kitten escaped with minor injuries and the loss of a few whiskers.

Since that time, Marie has spent the majority of her time persuading young Nathan that members of the feline species must be handled with care. All was well until several days ago when a local laundry telephoned Marie at her suburban home. "Do you have any kittens?" asked the voice of the laundry lady. Marie replied that she had, and continued telling at length about how cute they were. "Well," came the harassed answer, "one of them was sent in with the laundry!"

For the benefit of cat lovers, it is necessary to add that, although the kitten had been tied in a bundle from 7 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock that afternoon, it was returned to its owner hale, hearty, and much wiser for his harrowing experience.

GLIMPSED here and there: Mrs. Charles McGhee and her attractive young grandchildren, Charlie and Mary, watching the Dogwood Festival parade.

Edna Copeland, attractive visitor from Griffin, looking very smart in a flowered print. Jean Saunders picking wild flower plants in the woods to add to her mother's rock garden.

The Ed Wrights, the Carter Smiths and the Henry Pears forming a congenial party as they set out for Savannah, where the husbands will attend the convention of the Medical Association of Georgia.

Lucille Baldwin getting a thrill out of her negligence which won honorable mention in Washington Seminary's sewing contest. The Moody children on Huntingdon road seeing that their cute Sealham, Spunky, is all washed up and white as snow for the Dogwood Festival.

Kirkwood League Juniors Will Elect Officers on Friday

Following a musical program presented by Miss Miriam Vandegrift at the home of Mrs. Kate Green Hess at 230 Howard street, N. E., on April 24, at 3:45 o'clock, the junior organization of Kirkwood Civic League will elect and install officers for the new year. The retiring president, Miss Elizabeth Freeman, will preside and Mrs. Fred Nash and Mrs. H. C. Grant, who succeeded Mrs. Kate Green Hess as sponsor, or contact chairman between the league and the junior organization, will begin their official term at this meeting.

The by-laws of the junior department of the league were so revised at the April 7 meeting, the league, that the organization department shall be known as "the Junior Organization of Kirkwood Civic League." The purpose for organizing the department is that young women of college, high school and junior age may be gathered into the fold of the league, and lend their influence and service to that of senior league members in the cultural, educational, civic and social advance of the community. The juniors are encouraged by the presence of senior league members, and young women in or near the community of Kirkwood are invited to attend the meetings of the Junior Organization of Kirkwood Civic League.

TARZAN AND THE LEOPARD MEN No. 100

The shout of "Fire!" rang through the eerie recesses of the temple, and there groggy Leopard Men arose, their brains still dulled by the deadening fumes of native beer. Lulimi, the high priest, awoke with a start and was told of the threat to his warriors' village.

"Bobolo! Bobolo!" he called excitedly. When there was no answer, Lulimi acceded Bobolo the distinction of awakening him with a swift kick of his own sacred foot. "Take many men to fight the flames," Lulimi commanded; "if the village is destroyed, you die!"

Acting automatically under the stimulus of the threat, Bobolo collected all the Leopard Men who were capable of standing, hurried to the canoes, and set out for the burning village. In his dazed and excited state he quite forgot about Old Timer and Kali Swana. . . .

Meanwhile, Old Timer was paddling desperately down the sluggish stream toward the great river, which he hoped would prove the highway of escape. Suddenly the girl cocked her ears, then announced with quivering voice: "I hear paddles behind. They're after us!"

DEMOCRATS SCHEDULE NASHVILLE MEETING

Youth Parley Set for May 19-20, Just Prior to Regular Convention.

NASHVILLE, April 22.—(P)—Joe C. Carr, president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Tennessee, today set May 19-20 for the state convention of the organization to be held in Nashville.

Frank W. Wickham, of Sioux Falls, S. D., national Young Democratic Clubs president, will deliver the keynote speech.

A new state president will be chosen. The presidency goes to west Tennessee.

Carr estimated about 2,500 delegates will attend the rally, to be held just prior to the general democratic state convention here.

The meeting, he explained, would be in the nature of an "appreciation assembly" for President Roosevelt. He said that arrangements are being made to have the President address the convention by telephone.

Invitations to attend the convention have been sent to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Postmaster General James A. Farley, Senators Kenneth D. McKellar and Nathan L. Bachman, Speaker Joseph W. Byrns and other members of the Tennessee democratic delegation in congress.

National officers expected to attend include: A. C. Caraway, Orlando, Fla., executive secretary; Mrs. John G. Galleher, Leesburg, Va., vice president; and Charles Murphy, Portland, Maine, treasurer. Carr is secretary of the national organization.

SPORTSMAN KILLED IN CRASH.

HONOLULU, April 22.—(P)—James Duda, 36, Honolulu sportsman, was killed yesterday when the plane he was piloting crashed at the John Rodgers airport here.

Authorities said the plane apparently failed to come out of a power dive.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Pearl Duda, and a daughter, Mrs. Pearl Berry. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Atway & Lowndes.

Dr. Snyder said he was "very much grieved" that it had been published, but that Moody was a "fine young man" who had meant no slur upon any class of workers.

Moody said his efforts, much to his regret, had been misinterpreted and "the literary side forgotten." He added he knew mill employees as a class were "hard working and intelligent."

Dr. Williams said tonight that he was "going to comply with the house request as expeditiously as possible."

Some individual representatives, however, expressed the opinion that the resolution would be recalled.

Reading of the verse brought an indignant outburst in the house from representatives of textile manufacturing counties.

Student's 'Verse' on Mill Workers Stirs Solons To Vote Mental Test

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 22.—(P)—A college boy's attempt at depicting the seamy side of life in a cotton mill village stirred up a storm of protest today in the South Carolina house which promptly adopted a resolution directing a psychiatrist's examination of the young author.

Published in the Wofford College Journal, the literary effort in free verse in an imitation of Carl Sandburg's style referred to ignorant, diseased and dirty mill hands misled at their meetings by "mealy-mouthed hypocrites" and told a mill worker:

"You died on your sixteenth birthday when you went to work in the cotton mill."

It was written by Peter Moody, a sophomore at Wofford from Colesburg, N. C., a textile center, and a one-time "mill hand" himself.

Representative Ponder, of Spartanburg, where Wofford is located, read it to the house and introduced a resolution requesting Dr. C. Fred Williams, superintendent of the state hospital, to send a psychiatrist to examine the writer. It was adopted without a record vote.

Appraised of the house's action, Dr. H. N. Snyder, president of the state hospital, disclosed that he and Moody had previously written apologetic letters to the Spartanburg Central Labor Union.

Dr. Snyder said he was "very much grieved" that it had been published, but that Moody was a "fine young man" who had meant no slur upon any class of workers.
